Training for Hospitality

Training delivery

Training can be tailored to meet your individual requirements, ensuring you and your staff have the skills required for maximum performance within your specific business environment.

MEGT Institute will assist you to establish a personal training plan to suit your workload and learning needs. Using a variety of training methods and learning support resources we can customise the training delivery to suit your business environment. Workshops can be arranged for larger employers. The variety of approaches make the learning experience both rewarding and enjoyable.

Qualifications can also be gained through 'Skills Recognition' where existing skills and knowledge are identified.

MEGT Institute trainers

Our Hospitality trainers have extensive industry experience, hold formal industry qualifications, up-to-date vocational training qualifications and have a wide range of experience training in the Hospitality sector.

Commitment and choices

Training and recognition of skills already achieved can be a strong motivator for your employees. This will help their performance and extend their skills base, allowing your business to be more competitive and flexible. We can assist you to determine your training needs and how these align with your business objectives.

MEGT (Australia) Ltd supports an inclusive workplace where gender, age, culture, disability and lifestyle choice are valued. Our access and equity policy fosters and promotes an inclusive learning environment for all.
